Picnic and Praise at Restenneth Priory

In a change to our usual first article, today we are celebrating our visit to Restenneth Priory for our Picnic and Praise event on 21st July.

The event started with a prayer and picnic within the grounds of Restenneth Priory, followed by a visit to the Eco Garden and a display of Angus related archival material in the Angus Archives .

The Eco Garden was in full bloom and evidence of a new restoration project and the development of a new seating area were on display.

After viewing the garden the visitors moved inside the archives to view a selection of material from across Angus. The material included the Clark Letters, boxes of Forfar photographs, Peter Reid's patent for Forfar Rock, a school admission register and much more.

How About This for An Eco Idea

This goes to show that anything can be recycled to produce an attractive and useful space.

Have any of you any similar pictures you want to send in? If you do I will feature your fantastic ideas in future editions. Please send to

The Big Kirk Shop

His Royal Highness The Earl of Forfar and his wife Sophie, Countess of Forfar, visited the Town of Forfar in July of this year.

During the visit they attended various town functions, during which His Royal Highness spoke to Irene Duthie, our Brigade leader, outside Jarvis' and then later visited our shop and met shop staff.

During the visit His Royal Highness was presented with posies of flowers by May, Jack and Arwen Myles. As well as chatting to the Reverend Barbara Ann Sweetin about the church, its renovations and activities, he also spent quite a bit of time chatting to May Myles .

Around the Church Eco News

The call went out and the flocks of sheep came to the Angus Show.
